

QA Engineer – Boston, MA

As a Veson Nautical QA Engineer you will help ensure product quality and customer satisfaction for the world's leading developer of commercial maritime shipping software. You will be responsible for the development and execution of manual and automated test cases and QA processes that ensure quality throughout our release schedule. You will have a deep understanding of our customer's workflow and processes and uncover and diagnose problems in new and existing code by running customer centric scenarios. You will document tests, test plans and cases. You will have an important role in notifying developers, managers, field personnel of quality issues, and will lead the effort to identify areas for improvement of overall system quality.
